Few minorities mean few BOG internships

by Julie Cambria

Eastern has received the fewest Board of Governors' minority internships because it has the lowest percentage of minority students among the five BOG schools.

Eastern has been awarded two of the internships based on minority enrollment from fall 1983 when Eastern had 706 minority students in a total enrollment of 10,481 (the figure includes students taking correspondence and extension courses at other universities).

The 706 figure includes 463 blacks, 38 Hispanics, 83 American-Pacific Islanders, 8 American Indians and 94 Aliens.

Pamela Meyer, staff member to the BOG, said the internships are based on the percentage of 1983 minority enrollment compared to total enrollment in each of the BOG schools.

Meyer said Chicago State University received the most internships with 23, Northeastern received 11, Western 4 and Governors State, an upperdivision school, received 3.

Eastern's 1984 minority figures show Eastern still has the lowest percentage of minorities among the BOG schools.

Out of 627 minorities in fall 1984, 419 were black, 54 were Hispanic, 80 Asian Pacific Islander, 4 American Indians, and 70 Aliens.

Eastern had a 6 percent minority enrollment for fall 1984, Western 9 percent, Governors State 23 percent, Northeastern 29.5 percent and Chicago State 83 percent.

The BOG approved the $200,000 system-wide minority internship program at their Sept. 17 meeting.

Meyer added that the $200,000 program is funded through the Illinois General Assembly and that the BOG hopes it will be refunded and increased next year.

Meyer said each of the five schools in the BOG will set up its own program and have its own coordinator.

"Each school will have a program under specific guidelines that all five of the universities agreed to," she said.

According to the Sept. 18 BOG Executive Director's Report, Eastern will receive $8,000 for the internships and $850 for the administration of the program.

Jon Laible, coordinator for the program at Eastern, said the $850 will be "used to reimburse faculty members' expenses supervising the internships."

The internships, which are with governmental agencies and public service offices, will pay each student $1,000 a month for four months.

They will be available to full-time, minority upperclassman or graduate students who are interested in public service careers or policy making positions in the private sector.

Students must have a 2.75 cumulative grade point average and possess strong writing and research skills.

Laible said each student must fill out the application form and is required to write a brief essay on how the internship will help them in their academic program.

Meyer said a committee of faculty members at each university will decide who receives the internships and a system-wide committee, comprised of coordinators from the five university committees, will have final approval.

Despite low minority enrollment, recruitment 'thorough'—Taber

by Joni Taylor

Eastern's dean of academic services told Faculty Senate members Tuesday that efforts to recruit minority students already provide an "intense and thorough coverage of the state."

The senate Tuesday met with Samuel Taber, dean of academic services, and Admissions Director John Beacon to discuss ways to attract and retain more minority students at Eastern.

The senate's concern stems from Eastern's lowest black enrollment since 1977. Eastern's black enrollment plummeted to 419 this fall, down 212 since 1977.

Although the senate had hoped to be able to provide suggestions for improving the recruitment following the meeting, Taber told senate members that the admissions office is already taking steps to improve their minority recruitment process.

Taber said Eastern currently has blacks on the recruitment staff to work the inner-city Chicago area and other urban communities, and black counselors in the academic assistant center.

In addition, a survey form that asks blacks currently here what attracted them to Eastern and a pamphlet to inform blacks of the services and programs Eastern offers are currently being made.

Taber said he tries to sell potential black Eastern students on the university's academic reputation, size, and quality of instruction, and "if they ask, I'll tell them the percentage of blacks here."

Senate member Carol Stevens suggested pairing black Eastern students with Chicago area recruiters so that potential black Eastern students could hear about the services Eastern provides from someone they can identify with.

However, Taber said this would be an additional expense and would cause the student representatives to miss a week of classes.

In addition, Beacon said the main problem in recruitment from inner-city Chicago was that blacks don't want to come 200 miles south to Eastern.

Also, Beacon said a program that brought 40 black students to Eastern for a weekend to tour the campus and explain the programs resulted in less than 20 percent of those students enrolling at Eastern.

Beacon said a survey of those students revealed that, although they were impressed with Eastern, they could not be provided with housing due to late housing dates. Also, the students could not secure enough financial assistance.

Beacon said he believes the real problem is retaining those black students currently enrolled at Eastern.

Stevens suggested that an increase in black graduate students would aid retention efforts because graduate

Mattoon convict escapes from Menard penitentiary

by Dave McKinney

and the Associated Press

CHESTER—A Coles County man convicted of a 1979 Mattoon murder escaped with one other prisoner from a medium-security section of the Menard Correctional Center in southern Illinois, corrections officials said Tuesday.

John Edwards, Jr., 61, formerly of Mattoon, was discovered missing during a check of prisoners Tuesday, Mike Howell, Department of Corrections spokesman, said.

Also missing was Benjamin Gibson, formerly of Mason County.

Edwards, who was convicted in 1980 for the murder of a 16-year-old Mattoon youth, was serving a 30-year murder sentence.

"They should be considered dangerous because of their escaped status and the fact that they were convicted of murder," Howell said.

Edwards is a white male, 5-feet-10 and 165 pounds with white hair and green eyes. Gibson, also a white male, 5-feet-11 and 160 pounds with brown hair and gray eyes.

After Edwards' 1980 conviction, threats were reportedly made against the lives of Mattoon Police detective Robert O'Dell, former States Attorney and current Coles County Circuit Judge Paul C. Komada and Coles County Sheriff Chuck Lister.

Lister confirmed that. However, O'Dell, at the Mattoon Police Department, refused to comment on the threat. And Komada, from his rural Charleston residence, denied the threat.

Lister said that the Sheriff's Department would "obviously take special precautions. . .but it's hard to give protection to everyone."

Lister said the threat wasn't the first made to him by a convict and that Edwards' alleged post-trial threat probably holds no substance.

"I doubt he'll come to the area," Lister said. "There are too many people who know him."

"If he's in the area, we'd try to make an arrest," Lister said. "We'd monitor our sources on the street to get a feel where he's at."

Howell said local law enforcement officials have been notified of the escape, and that extra corrections officers have been sent to Menard to help with the search.

Late Tuesday, however, officials from Menard reported no developments in the search.

Howell said the two men were assigned to a medium-security maintenance garage unit outside the walls of Menard at the time of their escape.

Bishops ask for Ethiopian relief

SPRINGFIELD—Three bishops representing religious denominations in central and Southern Illinois called on the federal government Tuesday to take extraordinary steps to speed food to starving people in Africa by Christmas.

The plea was part of a nationwide effort directed by Bread for the World, a religious group that lobbies Congress on behalf of the hungry.

The religious leaders cited World Health Organization figures estimating that five million African children will die of starvation in 1984.

High court to decide prayer issue

WASHINGTON—The legitimacy of setting aside daily moments of silence for student prayer or meditation in the nation's public schools was debated Tuesday before a sharply divided Supreme Court.

In a case as politically charged as any on their docket, the justices must decide whether state laws allowing public schools to provide such periods may mention "prayer" as one possible activity during the silence.

Numerous political candidates this year—including President Reagan—called for a return of organized prayer in public schools. As Sen. Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., told reporters Tuesday, school prayer is one way of restoring "morality and ethics as a centerpiece of American democracy."

Chicago teachers continue strike

CHICAGO—The teachers' strike paralyzing the nation's third-largest school district moved in its second day Tuesday with reports that two issues—salary and the length of the school year—remained unresolved by negotiators.

There were conflicting reports on how long the strike by 28,000 teachers and 12,000 non-teaching employees may last. The walkout began Monday, idling 430,000 students.

Talks were resuming Tuesday afternoon between negotiators for the board and striking school workers after a 10-hour bargaining session Monday.

Agency proposes pollution tax

WASHINGTON—Backed by environment and industry groups that are often at odds, the government is about to propose the first federal pollution tax, intended to make truck and engine manufacturers pay the costs they escape by not meeting clean air standards.

Companies would be allowed to make products that violate the standards, but the tax would give them incentives to bring their trucks and engines into compliance as soon as possible. Highly polluting products would still be banned.

Tutu calls Reagan administration 'evil, immoral and un-Christian'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nobel Peace Prize winner Bishop Desmond M. Tutu accused the Reagan administration Tuesday of "immoral, evil and totally un-Christian" collaboration with South African apartheid, despite an administration claim that critics of its policy are spouting "rubbish."

Tutu told the lawmakers that the administration's policy "has encouraged the white racist regime (of South Africa) into escalated intransigence and oppression."

"We are talking about a moral issue," he said. Denouncing apartheid as "evil, immoral and un-Christian," he added. "The Reagan administration's...collaboration with it is equally immoral, evil and totally un-Christian."

In Chicago, the Rev. Jesse Jackson said Tuesday he will visit South Africa in January to focus attention on the plight of blacks living under apartheid, a system he said has been "reinforced" by Reagan administration policies.

Jackson said South Africa's ambassador, Bernardus Fourie, told him Monday his application for a visa had been granted. He had reapplied for a visa after a request to visit the white minority-ruled nation was rejected earlier this year.

The Chicago-based civil rights leader, who made a 17-day trip to South Africa in 1979, said he hopes to meet with government, labor and church officials as well as American businessmen in South Africa.

Jackson, who once said apartheid was "worse than Hitler," disclosed his travel plans amid two weeks of protests outside South Africa's embassy in Washington. Three national labor leaders were arrested there Tuesday, bringing to 22 the number of people taken into custody in the demonstrations. Seven House members and four people were taken into custody Monday in New York at the nation's consulate were among those arrested.

Jackson said the protests "have been quite effective. The fact that (members of) Congress and labor leaders have gone to jail has given the struggle for justice in South Africa the international credibility that's been given to the struggle in Poland."

In a telephone interview from Washington, he predicted the demonstrations will "accelerate" and spread throughout the nation.

"This particular volcano has been brewing a long time," Jackson said.

Military budget may undergo cuts

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan finished an initial round of deciding where to cut domestic spending Tuesday and White House aides indicated the next move will be to determine how much the president's planned military buildup must be trimmed to fight the flood of federal red ink.

"We'll have a pretty good feel at the end of the day as to how close we are to our...budget reduction goal for '85, and I think we can then begin to work with defense numbers," White House spokesman Larry Speakes said before Reagan began his last scheduled session on domestic spending reduction with a dozen senior aides.

Reagan met with his advisers for about an hour Tuesday afternoon. White House officials said the defense budget was discussed but that no decisions were made.

Later, as the president returned to the White House after visiting Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Reagan told reporters who asked about the budget deliberations: "We're still wrestling with it. We have nothing yet to say."

Reagan was due to meet Wednesday with his Cabinet, including budget director David A. Stockman.

White House officials have said they were trying to cut spending by $42 billion for the 1986 fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1, which may hold the deficit, now projected to reach more than $200 billion next year, to $170 billion.

In previous years, Reagan resisted calls to trim the growth of military spending. Speakes refused to say outright that Reagan has embraced the idea of reducing the military budget.

"On the early part of next week we will finalize defense spending," when Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger returns from a meeting of allied defense ministers in Brussels, Speakes said.

Schick to speak at fall graduation

by Amy Zurawski

About 500 Eastern students will be honored during the fall commencement ceremony at 2 p.m. Dec. 16 in Lantz Gymnasium.

Faculty Marshal Lavern Hammand said, "There are always around 500 people who graduate in the fall every year."

In addition to the students receiving their diplomas, Hammand said several university officials will participate in the graduation ceremony.

Hammond said Edgar Schick, vice president for academic affairs, will deliver the commencement speech to the graduating class.

"The president of the university usually gives the charge (the speech) to the class; but sometimes they ask someone who is new at the university or retiring to give it for a change of pace," he said.

Schick said, "I'm very glad I was asked to give the address."

However, he noted that he would not know what the speech would include "until a few days before the speech."

"When people ask me what my speech is going to be about, I tell them eight minutes," Schick added.

In addition, Hammond said Eastern President Stanley Rives will present the degrees and award the diplomas to the graduates.

He added that Eastern's band will perform before the ceremony and Joe Detamore from the First Christain Church, 411 Jackson, will deliver the invocation.

Hammond also said Robert Ruiz, a representative from the Board of Governors, Student Senate Speaker Ron Wesel and Patricia Cipolla, vice president of Eastern's Alumni Association will deliver greetings to the graduating class.

"We (university officials) decided that we would not have any formal speakers at graduation because students and their parents would rather hear the names read than listen to a long formal speech," he said.

In addition, Hammond said people who want to attend the graduation ceremony do not need to obtain tickets but "they should get to the gym early because it fills up fast every year."

Gas death toll rises to 1,000; more may die

BHOPAL, India (AP)—The poison gas leak from a pesticide plant has killed 1,000 people, doctors say, and many of the survivors in this central Indian city are threatened by blindness and sterility.

The doctors said many of the dead were children and the elderly, who were not strong enough to withstand—or outrun—the lethal cloud that spread over 25 square miles of this city of 900,000 on Monday. The methyl isocyanate gas had begun leaking at 1 a.m. from an underground storage tank at a Union Carbide pesticide plant in a poor area of Bhopal. The leak was stopped after 40 minutes, but the gas seeped silently over the city through the early hours of the morning.

Police on Monday arrested five plant officials on negligence charges and sealed off the factory. Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi, who toured the city Tuesday, said it would never reopen.

Bimla Devi, 37, who lost her husband and their only child, said the acrid gas sent thousands of people scattering in panic. She said most of those who fell, coughing and crying, were old people and children.

Volunteers helped cremate 228 Hindus on blazing outdoor pyres that flickered bright orange against the dark sky Tuesday night. Other volunteers helped dig graves to bury Moslems 11 at a time in common 15-foot-long graves.

Doctors said the gas makes the lungs produce so much fluid that victims drown, sometimes days after the exposure.

Drs. Parveen Chaudhury and S.K. Srivastava of Hamedia Hospital told The Associated Press they counted 500 corpses at the city's major hospitals and had reports of at least 500 more dead at hospitals on Bhopal's outskirts. The United News of India news agency said there were not less than 1,200 dead.

Doctors said as many as 200,000 people were affected by the gas, and Chaudhury said 20,000 may suffer serious after-effects.

Butler to address Student Senate with State of University speech

by Nancy Bridges

Student Body President Joe Butler will present his State of the University address Wednesday to the Student Senate.

Senate Speaker Ron Wesel said the student body president is required to present the speech by the senate constitution.

And although Butler would not reveal the content of his address saying, "It's a secret," he added that it will be entertaining."

In other business, the senate will vote on a bylaw proposal requiring senate approval of unbudgeted expenditures over $10, Wesel said.

The proposed bylaw was tabled at the Nov. 28 meeting, in accordance with the senate constitution.

Wesel noted that additional business will include final committee reports by the committee chairmen, including the retiring chairmen, Dan Brosseau, student awareness; Ken Gustin, academic affairs; and Paula Johnson, housing.

In addition, the non-senate committee members will be given awards "for their service and hard work this semester," he said.

Prior to the meeting, the senators will visit the Cambridge Court nursing home in Charleston, Wesel noted.

Wesel said the senators will sing carols and visit with the residents, as a philanthropy project.

Because of the nursing home visit, Wesel noted that the senate meeting time has been changed from 7 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be conducted in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola room.

Students believe nude calendar may hurt Northern

by Denise Strzalka

A 1985 calendar featuring nude women students from Northern Illinois University has not caused any controversy among Northern students. However, many Eastern students said they believe the calendar will hurt that university's reputation.

Several Eastern students believe the calendar published by The DeKalb NITE Weekly may hurt Northern's reputation even though the publisher of the paper is not connected with the university.

Junior Glenn Hudgins said a university's purpose is to educate and students should be learning.

He added that a nude calendar featuring Northern students "could diminish the image of an institution that has built up a good reputation."

Junior Chris Strahlman said the university should either not allow the students to pose for the nude calendar or should not let them advertise that they are Northern students "because it could give the university a bad image."

About 2,500 copies of a full-color 18 by 24 inch calendar featuring 12 full or partially nude pictures of female students from Northern was made available in DeKalb area retail stores Monday.

However, several students believe that because the calendar is not published by Northern, it won't have any adverse affects on the university.

Freshman Tom Wilery said the calendar won't hurt the school's reputation, "because the NIU is not publishing the calendar, so they shouldn't be connected with it."

Sophomore Bob Farrari said, "If a woman wants to pose nude for a calendar, then more power to her."

However, some students oppose the calendar because they believe it presents a degrading image of women.

Freshmen Kathleen Blattner said, "The DeKalb NITE Weekly is being sexist and is degrading women."

She added that if a calendar of nude female students is published, she believes a calendar of nude male students should also be made available.

Junior Jim Clark said, "I hope Eastern has too much class to ever publish a nude calendar that uses students."

He added that he believes that a calendar using students may be degrading Northern's female population.

However, one student disagreed.

Freshmen Morna Winter said, "The calendar does not exploit the women of NIU. You can't exploit someone who is willing to be exploited."

She added that the women chose to pose out of their own free will, so they can't consider themselves to have been degraded by the pictures.

Extermination of CASP grant defies success

It's apparent that Charleston city officials have defied all logic with a recent decision to end Charleston's Comprehensive Alcohol Safety Program.

The program, which was partially funded with a $63,000 grant from the Illinois Department of Transportation, established added patrol hours for Charleston police to crack down on drunk drivers. Part of the year-old CASP grant was also channeled through Eastern's Department of Traffic Safety to fund an educational campaign against drunk driving.

The results were encouraging: a dramatic increase in the number of drunk driving arrests, coupled with a decrease in alcohol-related car accidents.

Nonetheless, Mayor Clancy Pfeiffer and Police Chief Maurice Johnson decided recently that Charleston will not reapply for the grant.

The reasoning backing their decision is that the police overtime required to carry out the terms of the grant has put too much strain on officers working with the CASP units. This would be a valid concern if Becky Markwell, Eastern's CASP coordinator, had not suggested that police overtime could be cut to an acceptable level.

Another problem with Pfeiffer's cardboard decision to drop the program is the way it was reached—the public and the city council were not consulted prior to the decision. Technically, the decision not to reapply for the grant rested solely with Pfeiffer. However, we agree with Public Health and Safety Commissioner Olga Durham when she said recently that a decision of this magnitude should have had council input.

However, the cancellation of CASP does not necessary represent the end work to deter drunk driving in the area. Already, Markwell is working on instituting a similar program with the Clark County Sheriff's department.

We encourage Markwell's attempt to continue Eastern's anti-drunk driving campaign, and we believe the Charleston police can keep their promise to curb alcohol-related incidents with the precedent of the now defunct CASP in mind.

Your turn

A kick in the grade

Editor:

As a student of Physical Education 1860 "Beginning Karate," I'd like to express a few thoughts on recent changes in the class. With only a few class meetings remaining, the class has just been taken over by a third instructor. The new instructor is attempting to teach a system that was being taught initially.

At this point, one cannot begin to learn a system of martial arts nor can one's grade be determined based on the new system. This is unfortunate for both the students and the instructors.

Eastern's administrators should know what a loss they suffered when they allowed Master D.M. Hurst, the original instructor, to resign. His credentials are outstanding. He's studied Asian martial arts for 27 years and has earned a 7th degree black belt in kempo karate as well as black belt grades and instructor licenses in eight other martial arts.

He is founder and president of the U.S. Black Belt Association. Twice named as outstanding national karate instructor and in 1982 featured in "Who's Who in American Karate," Hurst is also a certified police self-defense instructor and a two-tour combat veteran of Vietnam.

He presently heads his own martial arts and fitness facility in Effingham. One would think that the administration would do anything in its power to keep such a qualified person.

It was an honor and a privilege to receive instructions from Hurst (even for just 10 weeks). I'd like to thank him and Tim Fickes, who filled in before the third instructor was brought in to teach. Perhaps it should've been voiced sooner, but you should know that your time and effort was appreciated.

Heat raises temper

Editor:

I am writing this letter because I am concerned about the overabundance of heat blowing into my dorm room. I live on the fourth floor of Taylor Hall.

When I first moved into this room, I noticed that the vent to the register was completely off and was laying in my roommate's closet. My resident assistant said that she reported it and "they" (don't ask who "they" is) would come and fix it. Well, "they" never came. I do give credit to the resident assistant because she tried twice to get it fixed.

When the heat was turned on, my room had an overabundance of heat pouring in. I have reported this problem to the residence hall secretary many times. Well, when I came back from Thanksgiving break, I was determined to get the vent fixed.

I walked into my room to find all my posters on the floor because the heat had melted the tape, my large fig tree totally dried up and a helium balloon melted together.

In addition, two of my friend's albums are warped and now unplayable. And the closing resident assistants had pulled the plug of my refrigerator, so I had melted butter all over the floor. To say the least, I was furious.

The next morning I took the two albums down to the hall secretary to complain. She said that "they" would be up to my room by 3 p.m. to fix it. "They" never showed up. I have been complaining ever since and "they" still haven't come.

It is unlivable up here. All I need is some sand and the ocean and I've got it made.

Beardless winters sting clean cheeks

It's the season with no name. All the leaves are off the trees, but there's no snow on the ground. Is it fall? Or is it winter?

It's just cold enough to drag the winter coat out at night, and it's times like these that menfolk start thinking about growing a face warmer—a beard.

This came to me in a blurred vision as I stood looking in the bathroom mirror at my face which was bleeding from four different self-inflicted gouge marks.

Shaving has never been one of my favorite pastimes—nor has it been one of my stronger skills. It's just one of those things that guys are supposed to know, but have been never taught.

Being well aware of this hacking motor-skill problem, I started looking for a solution—a way to be able to get up in the morning and never unintentionally butcher myself again.

Am I to keep a beardless, clean cut, Richie Cunningham look? Or should I go with the rugged Burl Ives face?

A beard, which takes less time to keep in shape (not to mention less hassle in the morning), is a lot warmer on the cheeks of students who forge across campus in the cold blowing winds of east central Illinois.

But upon close consultation with my fashion-minded sisters, the bearded look is not the in thing. (They don't like their sensitive skin getting roughed up while being kissed goodnight.)

Being one who refused to go back to septic pencils and toilet paper without a fight, a talk with the older generations of Ormiston convinced me that the Richie Cunningham look will have to do.

You see, while trying to get that Burl Ives look, one must go through a stage of adjustment—days, weeks, maybe even a month or so of the stragglybum look. Growing a beard means going to class for a while looking like you have just been grizzly bear hunting in the upper regions of Kankakee. (I'm also told that, while thick hair runs in the family, the right chromosome for a heavy beard must not be in the family pool.)

So, I'm stuck. Are you? Here are some suggestions from one hacker.

- When shaving at the folk's house, never leave your razor lying around. You never know when a sister may use your razor for her legs. There's nothing like shaving with a razor that seems to have just been run through sandpaper.

- No matter how important the date is, never shave when you are drunk.

- Never shave while hung over. Late nights that bring on hangovers have a tendency to distort vision.

- Never shave with a roommate's razor, especially if this roommate has a Burl Ives beard.

- Don't believe all those TV commercials. Letting "Noxema cream your face" doesn't feel any better than using the cheap Barbasol.

- When bleeding profusely, using a septic pencil works fine. Oh sure, it will sting a little, but hey, at five minutes to 8 a.m. with a four-minute walk to class, what would you rather have, a stinging face or toilet paper blotches stuck to all the hatchet gashes?

Developmental director searches for funds

by Charlotte Arnold

The administration position of developmental director has been instituted this fall by Eastern President Stanley Rives for the purpose of soliciting funds for the university.

The newly appointed director, Charles F. Ross, said his duty is "to coordinate a program to obtain funds from private resources that assist the university in better achieving its mission."

Ross said the programs the university would support would not come about without these additional resources.

Rives said the duties which Ross will perform were previously a responsibility of the former university relations and development director Ken Hesler.

Rives noted, "We have had some (private) giving over the years," but "the time has arrived to intensify the program." As a result, the position of developmental director was created, he said.

University Relations Director Daniel Thornburgh said the new post is under his administrative guidance. He said Rives appointed a development task committee, consisting of Ross; Alumni Director Charles Fite; Hesler, who serves as a consultant; and Thornburgh, who serves as committee chairman.

The committee is responsible for "a campus-wide assessment of needs that would be met by private funding," he added.

All department needs assessments were completed in November, Thornburgh said. The proposals will be reviewed by deans, directors, vice-presidents and those submitting reports, he noted. The reports will then be forwarded to Rives and the President's Council.

Rives said, "We're seeking a very broad-scale input from across the university," in the requests. He noted that the President's Council and he will categorize and prioritize the requests.

Student scholarships are a "high priority" area, he said. Rives noted that two-thirds of Eastern's students receive some form of financial aid and the amount of financial aid has remained "relatively stable," while tuition fees have increased.

We "need more financial aid available in the form of private scholarships" to supplement existing programs, Rives added.

Ross said the university "has a foundation with assets of slightly over $2 million that is a base for us to go forth with this program." He said these assets reflect private giving from previous years.

Ross said the additional funds will be directed towards various programs, such as: endowed scholarship funds, loan funds, additional funds for graduate assistants and funding for travel and fees for faculty and staff attending professional advancement workshops.

Also, the funding may finance the expansion and remodeling of buildings and equipment purchases, he noted. Although these are usually funded through university channels, Ross said, "only a limited number of these requests will be funded. It is important to seek these type of dollars elsewhere."

The concept of the developmental director position has been discussed since the administration of Eastern President Gilbert Fite, but Rives was the first president to pursue the position, he noted.

Ross said he was "amazed that Eastern didn't do it a long time ago."

Ross added that many secondary schools have a similar administrative positions. "Any college or university has to have some type of program like this in order to provide certain aspects of the programs that couldn't be provided through other resources."

Many major national corporations, "starting with the Fortune 500 list," are inclined to support these types of funding programs, he said.

However, the largest funding nationwide comes from individual contributions, with corporate funding ranking second, Ross noted. He added that donations from foundations are ranked third.

"We would anticipate the gifts to come in the same way here," Ross said. He noted that 52 percent of present contributions to the EIU Foundation come from individuals, and 48 percent comes from corporations and foundations.

"It is a program that has to be looked at from the long-range aspects, rather than short-range or immediate results," Ross said.

Ross' intermediate goals are to see the foundation endowment double to $4 million and to increase the individual contribution level to $100,000 per year. He noted that recent alumni giving has been $35,000 per year.

Ross said his long-term goal is to have the equivalent of 10 percent of the annual operating dollars of the university to be provided by the endowment. This would require funding of $35 million, he added.

Ross has worked in this field since 1967, most recently at Cedarville College in Ohio. He is the secretary of the Association of Institutional Development Officers, a national organization.

RHA puts opinion boxes in halls

by Charlotte Arnold

The Residence Hall Association is in the process of placing suggestion boxes in each residence hall to encourage students to voice their opinions about residence hall life, RHA officials said.

John Doerr, Public Relations Chairman, said Tuesday that the boxes will help residents "improve their communication with RHA and ultimately the housing office," by allowing them to pose questions or make suggestions concerning improvements in their hall.

RHA Regional Director Carolyn Smith added that the suggestion boxes are "a way for the average students to respond" to problems.

Doerr noted that students should include their name with the suggestions, which will be collected each week by the Public Relations committee.

Smith said many of the residence halls already have suggestion boxes located at the front desk and the others will be receiving boxes.

In other news, RHA will sponsor a dating game for students living in the residence halls.

The game is scheduled for 8 p.m. Dec. 13 in Coleman Hall.

Doerr said students will attempt to win a date in a contest, which is similar to the television game show.

In addition, RHA is sponsoring a basketball contest at every home basketball game, Doerr said.

The contest will continue until two students make a half-court basketball shot, he said. The winners will each receive an Eastern jacket.

He added that the participants will be randomly selected from the half-time crowd.

Council vote lets workers live within three-mile area

by Kevin McDermott

The Charleston City Council Tuesday narrowly kept alive a proposal to allow city employees to live up to three miles outside corporate limits.

By a 3-2 vote, the council placed on file for public inspection an amendment to a current ordinance which requires that city employees live within city limits.

The issue came up last week as the result of a petition signed by about 365 city employees.

Charleston police officer Rob Conforti, an unofficial employee representative, told the council such an amendment would attract better city employees to Charleston.

However, Public Health and Safety Commissioner Olga Durham said the decision should not be made without further studying the proposal.

Finance Commissioner John Beusch said he was concerned about the taxes the city would lose if employees started moving out. He also pointed out that letting on-call emergency employees live outside Charleston could be dangerous during emergencies.

Durham and Beusch both voted against the procedural two-week layover period a proposal must go through before it's passed.

One point the council agreed on is that, if a three-mile extension to the current residency ordinance were granted, the three miles should not start from the edge of city limits as was presented in the petition. Because Charleston city limits technically extend west to the Coles County Airport, three miles more would put the residency limit in Mattoon.

Holiday meal seminar set

by Yavis Rencher

Students who want to enjoy the holiday season, but want to watch their calorie intake, may be interested in attending a Counseling Center seminar.

The seminar, the last life skills seminar for the semester, is scheduled for Dec. 12 in the Union addition Greenup Room.

"Eat, Drink and Be Merry," by counselor Linda Perry, will offer some tips for moderate eating.

Genie Lenihan, coordinator of the life skills program, which offers seminars and workshops, said the "Eat, Drink and Be Merry," seminar will focus on how to maintain healthy drinking and eating habits throughout the holidays.

The Counseling Center has offered a variety of seminars and workshops this semester and Lenihan said the turnout has varied, as much as the topics.

Lenihan said a seminar on parent and student relationships, "Your Parents and You," did not have a large attendance, while another seminar, "Making Career Decisions," had capacity enrollment. Lenihan said 23 people attended the seminar.

Lenihan, who has coordinated the life skills program for three years, said students, faculty members and Charleston residents have attended the seminars. She added that the turnout depends on the topic.

However, another seminar, "Management Strategies for New-Age Women," had a turnout of only 15.

One workshop this semester which also had capacity enrollment was an "Assertion Training Course."

Fraternity plans to kidnap prominent town figures

by Allison Ekstrom

A few prominent Charleston figures will be "kidnapped," for two days while ransom for their release is collected.

Charleston Mayor Clancy Pfeiffer, Daniel Thornburgh, director of university relations; Ira Barrett, owner of Tokens; and Eli Sidwell, of Eli Sidwell Associates will be the "victims" of a staged kidnapping for the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity's Christmas philanthropy project.

Dean Filandrinos, a member of the fraternity said Pfeiffer, Thornburgh, Barrett and Sidwell will be held hostage Friday and Saturday while fraternity members, along with members of the Sigma Kappa sorority, are collecting canned goods for their ransom.

Filandrinos said, "There will be no actual kidnapping, but photos of Pfeiffer, Thornburgh, Barrett, and Sidwell will be taken showing them being 'kidnapped'."

The purpose of the philanthropy project is to help needy families in the area.

Filandrinos said the canned goods will be given to the Charleston Civic Association for needy families. He added that ransom goods may be taken to the fraternity's house, at 1532 Fourth St.

This will be the second year that the fraternity has held a "kidnapping," and Filandrinos said the project was successful.

Who Rules? The UPTOWN RULERS

On Thursday

Appearing December 6 at eight o'clock in the Grand Ballroom will be the well-known Uptown Rulers. Admission is $2.00.

The Rulers have appeared regularly at Ted's Warehouse in Charleston and "the band's energetic stage presence is received most enthusiastically in the band's Midwestern touring area." —Indiana Daily Student.

The Rulers have condensed their powers to produce high energy ska-wave-reggae. . . a sound truly their own.

"...they have that inner something that lets the listener know they've got something really good on their ears." —The Prairie Sun.

"The Uptown Rulers are not a band to take sitting down. They're fun to watch and a gas to dance to." —The Daily Iowan.

Opening for the group will be the Didjits, also a local band.

In Focus

Touchy Subject

My stepfather made advances towards me over Thanksgiving break and I gratefully accepted. Now I'm afraid it's going to grow into a relationship. Christmas break will bring us together again. HELP! What should I do? I think I'm falling in love.

Reply

Developing an effective relationship involves total commitment on the part of both persons involved. In your situation, one partner is already committed in another relationship and will not be able to be committed totally to you.

You probably should consider the consequences of this potential relationship and determine whether or not you are prepared to accept them. Remember you do have a choice in what is happening—make sure it will be in your best interest. You have a lot of thinking to do. I wish you well in your decision.

Putting It Off

It seems like every semester I promise myself I won't procrastinate. I'll do all right at first. . . but here it is a couple of weeks before break and I have more projects due than time to do them. I've worked hard to get my GPA where it is. Do you have any suggestions on how I can get everything done?

Reply

Managing time efficiently can be particularly hard when you have little time left to manage. Perhaps you may find it useful to take a couple of minutes to list everything you need to do and then schedule it out on a calendar. Make sure you allow plenty of time to relax and then stick to it! Good luck.

Got a question, or just need information? I would like to hear from you. Please address your letter (campus mail) to IN FOCUS, c/o University Board, 201 University Union, Charleston, IL 61920.

IN FOCUS is written by David Ford, who has had experience in psychology and is currently working on his Master's Degree in Educational and Community Counseling at Eastern. IN FOCUS is a student service of the University Board providing information and alternatives to student concerns.

★ Positions Available ★

University Board is now inviting inquiries and applications for two coordinator positions. These positions are, Homecoming and Crazy Daze coordinator and Human Potential coordinator.

Applications may be dropped off at the University Board office which is located next to the Walkway in the Union by December 10. For more information, call 581-5117. Get into University Board, it's a great experience!

SOME MATERIAL MAY BE INAPPROPRIATE FOR CHILDREN

Friday...

As the might final exams start creeping upon you, you'll need something to divert your attention. Since finals are (kind of) serious, how about a bunch of laughs sponsored by the UB? Check out Goldie Hawn in Swing Shift. Picture a young, recently-married woman thrust into the labor force for the very first time as her husband marches off to World War II. What is she to do with her husband off defending the country and as her factory foreman just happens to be the incredibly sexy Kurt Russell? Something amusing just has to happen.

If you loved her in Private Benjamin, Goldie Hawn will be sure to tickle your fancy in Swing Shift. Be sure to catch the last flick of the semester Friday, December 7 in the Grand Ballroom at 6:30 and 9:00 pm. Admission is only $1.00.

Committee finds Ferraro violation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House ethics committee found that Geraldine Ferraro violated the Ethics in Government act at least 10 times but is not recommending any formal House action against the lame-duck representative, a congressional source said Tuesday.

The committee voted 8-2 Monday to adopt a staff report that says the 1984 Democratic vice presidential nominee failed to provide complete information on her required financial disclosure statements since entering Congress. But because the New York lawmaker is leaving office when the 99th Congress convenes Jan. 3, the 12-member panel plans no further action, said the source. Ms. Ferraro said the panel's report "confirms that I acted with complete integrity in making my financial disclosure statements. . . I consider myself completely vindicated."

Schroeder still recovering

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Doctors said Tuesday they are beginning to treat artificial heart recipient William J. Schroeder like "the usual patient," planning to remove his intravenous tubes and start him on an exercise program.

Dr. William C. DeVries said the 52-year-old patient was "progressing very well" and would be "entirely on his own" when the last remaining tubes were removed later Tuesday.

A simple exercise program for Schroeder—getting out of bed, taking short walks—will begin Wednesday, so he was being allowed to rest Tuesday, DeVries said in a news conference.

students have a lot of contact with underclassmen.

Taber said publications to inform parents and students of academic assistance programs and a student academic "survival manual" are currently being considered.

However, senate member Janet Norberg said many students don't take advantage of the academic assistance programs offered.

"If they can make it but refuse to do it there's nothing you can do about it. You can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink."

Beacon responded by saying that some students don't ask for assistance because they are embarrassed.

Stevens said some disadvantaged students may have a problem with academics because they have problems meeting their physical and social needs.

Steven said she has encountered students who only eat every other day, or eat popcorn for dinner.

Senate member Herb Morice suggested assigning students with those special problems to a group of "concerned faculty members" who would be willing to work with those students on a personal level.

Bowl invitations filled after bizarre season

The Associated Press

The bowl lineup finally is complete, but not without one more surprise to cap this bizarre college football season.

Eleventh-ranked Auburn was upset by archrival Alabama 17-15 and had to change its holiday plans from the Sugar Bowl to a Liberty Bowl date.

As one wag put it, New Orleans and Memphis both on the Mississippi and both have good jazz.

The Cotton Bowl also secured its host team when Houston downed Rice 38-26. The unranked Cougars, part-time losers, weren't what the Cotton Bowl really wanted against eighth-ranked Boston College andisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie—the Eagles whipped Holy Cross 45-10 as Flutie passed for 276 yards and three touchdowns. But No. 13 Texas, undefeated after its first seven games, dropped three of its last four, including Saturday's 37-12 rout at the hands of Texas A&M, and wound up in the Freedom Bowl against Iowa.

In other action last weekend, third-ranked Florida, the Southeastern Conference champion but banned from a bowl, wound up with a 27-17 triumph over No. 12 Florida State, 10th-ranked Southern Methodist trimmed Nevada-Las Vegas 38-21, Georgia Tech shocked No. 18 Georgia 35-18, Iowa tripped Hawaii 17-6, Army trounced Navy 28-11, Tennessee trounced Vanderbilt 29-13 and Temple pounded Toledo 35-6.

The bowl lineup looks like this:

Holiday—Brigham Young-Michigan; Orange—Oklahoma-Washington; Sugar—Nebraska-LSU; Rose—Ohio State-Southern Cal; Gator—South Carolina-Oklahoma State; Cotton—Boston College-Houston; Aloha—SMU-Notre Dame; Liberty—Auburn-Arkansas; Florida

Citrus—Florida State-Georgia; Freedom—Texas-Iowa; Sun—Maryland-Tennessee; Fiesta—Miami-UCLA; Bluebonnet—Texas Christian-West Virginia; Hall of Fame—Kentucky-Wisconsin; Peach—Virginia-Purdue; Cherry—Army-Michigan State; Independence—Virginia Tech-Air Force; California—Nevada-Las Vegas vs. Toledo.

Alabama, salvaging a measure of satisfaction from its first losing season in 27 years, built a 17-7 lead over Auburn on Paul Ott Carruth's touchdown runs of 6 and 4 yards and Van Tiffin's 52-yard field goal.

Then, the Crimson Tide's defense took over after Auburn's Brent Fullwood ran 60 yards for a touchdown with 9:11 remaining and Bo Jackson's two-point conversion run closed the gap to two points.

Meanwhile, Houston clinched its fourth Cotton Bowl berth since joining the Southwest Conference nine years ago by overcoming stubborn Rice.

Cubs trade four to Yanks, get pitching help in return

HOUSTON (AP)—The New York Yankees on Tuesday sent pitcher Ray Ltenot and infielder-outfielder Brian Pett to the Chicago Cubs for four players in the first trade of the 1984 winter meetings.

In return for their two players, the Yankees will receive catcher Ron Casey, outfielder Henry Cotto and others Rich Bordi and Porfi Amirano.

Fontenot, 27, was 8-9 for the Yankees with a 3.61 earned run average in 35 games last season, his first full one in the major leagues. He appeared in 15 games for the Yankees with an 8-2 record in 1983.

Dayett, 27, split the 1984 season between Columbus and the Yankees. He batted .301 in 45 games at Columbus and .244 in 64 games with the Yankees.

Hassey, 31, came to the Cubs from Cleveland last year, hitting .333 in 19 games at Chicago. Cotto, 23, played in 105 games with the Cubs last year, batting .274.

Bordi and Altamirano, both right-handers, were used primarily in relief by Chicago. Bordi, 25, was used in 31 games, all but seven of them in relief, and had a record of 5-2 with a 3.46 ERA and four saves.

Altamirano, 32, spent most of the season with Chicago's Class AAA club in Iowa, where he had 17 saves, a 4-4 record and a 3.03 ERA. He had no record and no saves in five appearances with the Cubs. His ERA was 4.76.

Panther Olympian again must prove basketball skills

"It's (the Olympics) got to influence everything I do, but right now I'm a basketball player at Eastern Illinois and not an Olympic handball player."

—Tim Dykstra

There are no signs in Plymouth, Ind. championing Tim Dykstra. There are no banners in Charleston or LaGrange, Ind., where he now lives, applauding him.

But each city still takes pride in Dykstra, their 200 pound blonde-headed Olympian. "I haven't been to Plymouth in over a year, but they claim me as an Olympian there."

However, prior to Dykstra "the Olympian" he was just a kid from Plymouth looking to make headlines at Eastern as a basketball player. He thought that would be enough.

Tim Dykstra

But his talent for throwing around a ball the size of a mello was apparent. So, he skipped last year to train as a middle-back in Europe. Now he's back at Lantz Gym.

Few know Dykstra the basketball player, while thousands of students have come and gone since he first excited Lantz crowds four years ago.

In fact, many students got their first look at Dykstra Saturday night. His free throw with 14 seconds left helped edge Indiana State 68-67.

"There's a lot of people here who don't even know I was at the Olympics, but that's all right," he mused. "I have to prove myself all over again. I know that."

"But in the back of my mind, I was wondering how much I would even play this season," he added. "There were so many good players on the team."

In three years, Dykstra had accumulated 564 points, started 32 of 77 games, shot 47 percent from the floor and hauled down 252 rebounds.

Now in his final season, Dykstra is a leader. Increased maturity is perhaps helping him deal with a very talented supporting cast.

"I'm a role player, and it's not necessary that I excel each night." Saturday, he chipped in 11 points.

And before the season's over, Dykstra is expected to earn his third-straight conference all-academic honor. The award usually requires a 3.80 grade point average.

"They (the younger players) can look at a guy like me and see some importance of working hard in the classroom," he said. "It's important—you have to stay eligible."

But perhaps the Olympics have made him a better asset. He's had no trouble fitting back into a program which has gone through quite a test of maturity in five years.

"I think I've really matured over the year, and you realize there's more to life," he said. "But the program is like night and day since I first came here. We've come that far."

Some fresh insight has also changed him. Chicago Bulls' Michael Jordan, Philadelphia's Leon Wood and Oklahoma's Wayman Tisdale tutored him well this summer.

"They were great guys, and it wasn't like I just went up to them and posed for a picture. They were pretty much interested in my sport, because it was so similar to basketball."

Cagers to battle Kent State's fast guards, patient offense

by Ken Dickson

Quick guards and a patient half-court offense are the items Eastern's men's basketball team will have to contend with Wednesday as the team travels to Kent State University for a 6:30 p.m. game.

The guards, Anthony Grier and Larry Robbins, are two of the returning four starters for the Golden Flashes, who finished 15-13 last year. Grier, a 5-11 senior, averaged 15.7 points per game last season and Robbins, a 6-3 senior, averaged 17.3.

Last year Eastern in its season's opener, beat Kent State 79-76 at Lantz Gym, despite Robbins' 26 points on 12 field goals and two free throws. Grier had 15 points, while Jon Collins and Kevin Duckworth led Eastern with 17 and 15 points, respectively.

Tim Wyss, now at Northwestern University, and Duckworth staged last season's win.

Wyss came off the bench for the injured Vincent Smelter and made a free throw. Wyss missed the second, but Duckworth rebounded and made a short jump shot to give the Panthers a three-point lead with four seconds left.

"They have a good half-court offense and a good defense," Eastern coach Rick Samuels said of this year's Kent State team. "We'll have to concentrate on keeping constant contact with our men."

Samuels said the Panthers have been "polishing some defenses." A lot of structured defenses, including zones and on a motion game.

"We'll look to go inside on them," Samuels said. "They're very quick in the backcourt, but they're not as big as us."

"They'll try to get our big men out on top and away from the basket," he said.

The other two returning starters, 6-8 sophomore center, Tom Wearsch and 6-6 junior forward Steve Tindall averaged only 10 points a game between them last season, but are better known for defense.

"We are capable of running the game," Kent State coach Jim McDonald said. "We have very good team speed, and the control of the game is going to depend on rebounding."

Kent State is 1-1 so far this season. It beat Tri-State College (Indiana) 66-44 and lost Saturday at the University of Alabama 64-64.

Kent State, located in Kent, Ohio, is a member of the Mid-American conference is an NCAA Division I school of about 19,000 students.

WLBH-FM radio (97) will carry the game live beginning at 6:30 p.m. Charleston time.

Wright wins All-America honor

by Jeff Long

Jerry Wright, the finest pass receiver to run patterns in an Eastern uniform, has been selected to the Kodak Division I-AA All-American team by the American Football Coaches Association.

Not only was it Wright's second post-season award, but it marked the seventh straight year Eastern has been represented on a Kodak All-American team.

"This is the capstone on a great collegiate career for Jerry, and certainly a well deserved honor," said head coach Al Molde, who has coached Wright the last two years, his best as a Panther. "His pass catching ability obviously impressed the opposing coaches, and we are pleased they recognized his talents in this manner."

This year, Wright finished his final season as a Panther with a bang. The senior set a single season reception mark with 72 catches good for 1,029 yards and seven touchdowns.

For his illustrious four-year career, Wright leaves the Panthers as the leader for career receiving yardage with 2,522 yards. He broke one of Eastern's oldest records, which had stood since 1973 when Willie White established a mark of 2,197.

In addition, Wright's 72 receptions this season moved him to No. 2 on Eastern's career reception list with 150. He also ranked third this year in I-AA national stats with 7.6 catches per game.

Wright, who was bestowed All-Mid-Continent Conference honors earlier, was the only MCC player named by Kodak, which picks only a first team on both offense and defense.

Other Kodak All-Americans chosen from Eastern in the past were safety Robert Williams in 1983 and '82, safety Kevin Gray in '81, defensive end Pete Catan in '80, running back Poke Cobb in '79 and wide receiver James Warring in '78.
